POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

Millions for defense, but not one cent for politics!

Neatly summed up in modern paraphrase, that represents the policy which the state legislature plans to follow in allocating funds for the California State guard and other war-time activities, according to leaders of the two houses.

When the legislators reconvene their special session at Sacramento on Jan. 12, after their joint senate-assembly committee has had a chance to inquire into the state's war needs, the lawmakers hope to be ready to adopt a definite, full-fledged defense program with adequate safeguards thrown around it to prevent any possibility of political profiteering.

There will be no stinting on necessary funds for the state guard, fire patrols, civilian defense, or other emergency requirements, legislative spokesmen assert. If millions are needed, millions will be voted, but a majority of the members in both houses will insist on a check-rein on expenditures to make certain that the taxpayers' funds are not squandered.

Refusal of the legislature, at its session last week, to give the state guard $17,500,000 and augment the emergency fund by $10,000,000, as requested by Governor Olson in his special session call, was due, in part, to the fact that the legislators felt no program had been presented, nor no necessity shown, for such a huge appropriation. But more important, the recent relief fiasco, with its padded payrolls and gigantic patronage machine, was still fresh in their minds.

Consequently, the lawmakers voted a temporary appropriation to replenish the emergency fund and carry on the work of the state guard, but refused to commit themselves to a long-term program with a large appropriation until they had an opportunity to check with military authorities as to what the federal government wants done —and how they want it handled.

If it is determined that Uncle Sam intends to withdraw soldiers and marines from their work of guarding defense industries, transportation facilities, light and power plants, public buildings, etc., then the lawmakers are agreed that a permanent police guard or state guard must be maintained to do the job. But if, on the other hand ,the army intends to carry on with this work and simply wants the state to be equipped to handle disaster relief, it is possible that only a small, full-time state guard will be maintained. This, however, would be augmented ,by a large home guard, composed largely of World war veterans — and numbering perhaps 50,000 or 100,000 men—to serve in emergencies when called upon.

When it comes to providing California with an adequate defense program, there isn't a dissenting member in the state legislature, regardless of party affiliations or past differences. On that score there is absolute unity. But the boys are all-fired determined to keep the program from turning into a war-time replica of the SRA.

Red Cross Needs War Relief Funds

National headquarters of the American Red Cross has sent out an appeal for $50,000,000 for war relief work. The task the Red Cross now has to do is tremendous and they must have the funds to carry on their relief work. Everyone must participate to the extent of their ability.

Campbell hopes to raise $2000 as its share of the national quota. Arrangements are being made so that subscribers may leave their donations with various merchants. Until these are completed, funds may be left at Mathis' Red & White store, Clark's Drug store, or Farley's real estate office.

The membership roll call drive is over and all funds received will go into the war relief fund.

Dan W. Clark is chairman of the local Red Cross committee.

Premier of Travelogue Here Jan. 5th

A world premier will be held at the Campbell Union Grammar School auditorium on Jan. 5 at 8 p. m. The picture is "Latitude Zero," a travel tale of Ecuador presented by Herbert Knapp, whose "Fiji, Cannibal Land of Yesterday," won such acclaim here last year.

Since 1936 Mr. and Mrs. Knapp have traveled extensively around the Pacific recording with beauty and significance the lives and customs of the natives of Tahiti and Fiji, and now Ecuador. They spent many months in this small South American republic which lies across the equator and which has scenery which varies from jungle to snowcovered peaks and dormant volcanoes. During their stay in the country war broke out between Ecuador and Peru, apparently instigated by the Nazis in their first attempt to disrupt the solidarity of the Americas.

Following the showing in Campbell, Knapp will present his picture at the Shrine auditorium in San Francisco and then follow a regular lecture circuit across the country.

A joyful Christmas surprise in the T. A. Robinson family was the arrival of their son Bert, who returned home at noon with the Spartan football team, back from their tragic visit to Honolulu.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Shank, Jr., and family of Burbank, and George Shank of San Francisco, were Christmas day guests at the L. C. Shank, Sr., home on Latimer avenue.

It's Never Too Late to Help

Christmas day marked the official closing of the annual Christmas Seal sale conducted by the Santa Clara County Tuberculosis association.

However, it is not too late to send in contributions for Christmas seals, which may have been forgotten in the last minute rush of Christmas preparations.

Funds derived from the sale of Christmas seals are the association's means of waging a year-round fight against a disease which still remains the leading public health menace.

This year, with the nation at war, there is urgent need for an increased Christmas seal sale, in order that the tuberculosis association may greatly extend its preventive work. It is during times of stress that diseases of all kinds and particularly tuberculosis take their greatest toll.

The tuberculosis association is confident of reaching its goal this year. Persons who have forgotten to pay for their Christmas seals are urged to do so as soon as possible in order that your tuberculosis association may complete its budget for the coming year.

Young Folks Attend Mid-Winter Meet

A group of young people from the Congregational church attended the mid-winter conference of Pilgrim Fellowship Youth Groups in Berkeley from Monday to Wednesday of this week, where an interesting and helpful study program was enjoyed.

RAIN DELAYS PAPER DRIVE

Obviously, the Boy Scouts have so far this vacation been unable to begin their permanent paper drive, but if the rain lets up the boys will get under way Friday and Saturday.

E. C. Merrill has offered the use of his garage at Campbell and Dillon avenues for a storage depot until sufficient quantities are on hand for disposal. Housewives are reminded that clean rags, copper and brass are also needed. When available, use cardboard cartons for containers.

Voluntary Enlistments In U. S. Marines

According to word received from Sgt. R. L. Creitz, in charge of the Marine corps recruiting office at Room 228 in the Post Office building, San Jose, the Marines are still accepting all qualified young men for voluntary enlistment in the corps, and will continue to do so. Enlistments in either the regular Marine corps for four years or in the Marine Corps reserve for the duration of the war are open to all men between the ages of 17 and 30.

The increased enlistments since the United States' entry into the war are indeed gratifying, but this is only a beginning and thousands of men are needed to swell the ranks of the corps, which for 166 years has been always in the forefront in America's fight for the preservation of democracy.

The courageous and bitter defense of Wake and Midway islands by small but inspired garrisons of U. S. Marines is being accomplished by their knowledge that in the great nation for which they are fighting, millions of young men are taking up the battle cry, "We're coming. You will not fight alone!"

Next Tuesday the officers of the local club for 1942 will be installed by Alvin Long of San Jose, a past lieutenant-governor of division 12.

"THE SILVER LINING"

Yes, food prices have gone up—and undoubtedly will go higher in the near future. It is part of a war economy. It cannot be avoided. Costs of production go up. The result is an increased cost of products. But turn the dark clouds inside out and look for the silver lining! Here's a bit of testimony from the records of the Senate Committee on Currency and Banking:

Senator Glass — "Why does not the retail price keep pace with the wholesale price?"

Leon Henderson—"The retailer buys replacement stock—he doesn't replace his whole stock, and he buys at varying prices in the market. He averages his prices. We have an arrangement that started very early with the retail organizations of the country who were very, very acutely aware of the inflation problem, more aware, I believe, than any other group, and they have adopted almost as standard practice that they would do their averaging instead of trying to profiteer at the expense of the jump in the wholesale price, and using their replacement costs as a base for their retail prices."

Senator Tobey—"That is a fine tribute you are paying them."

Mr. Henderson—"They have done a good job."

Americans are assured of plenty of food. Billions are to be spent on national defense. There will be money to pay for food. We will go through this war with far less privation than most of the other peoples of the world have already suffered. It remains only for each of us "to do a good job."

THE WAR COMES TO CALIFORNIA

It required the shock of seamen killed and ships blasted by shell and torpedo within the sound of our shores to bring Californians to full realization that all of us, to the last man, woman and child, are within actual firing range of Jap subs and bombers. It is possible that the shooting shortly may not stop at the coastline.

But on California's own soil lurks the myriad menace of spies and saboteurs. The FBI is doing yeoman service in rounding up hostile aliens and traitors, but some of these may never be discovered until they strike for a foe whose ruthlessness and treachery have been so murderously demonstrated.

As one native Californian, James Rolph III, declared in an address following the first torpedoing: "Universal danger places universal responsibility upon all who love our state. The workman in one of Southern California's great aircraft plants fights for his family's safety when he builds the planes our forces must have to blast Jap aggressors from the skies and seas. The workman in a San Francisco shipyard fights for his family's safety when he speeds the launching of warship or troopship or cargo ship. The businessman fights for his family when he writes his employes' salary checks, pays his taxes, buys defense bonds and competes with the Axis' way of life."

War has come to California—and California must help to hurl it back, fighting in the front line trench of an embattled and united nation.

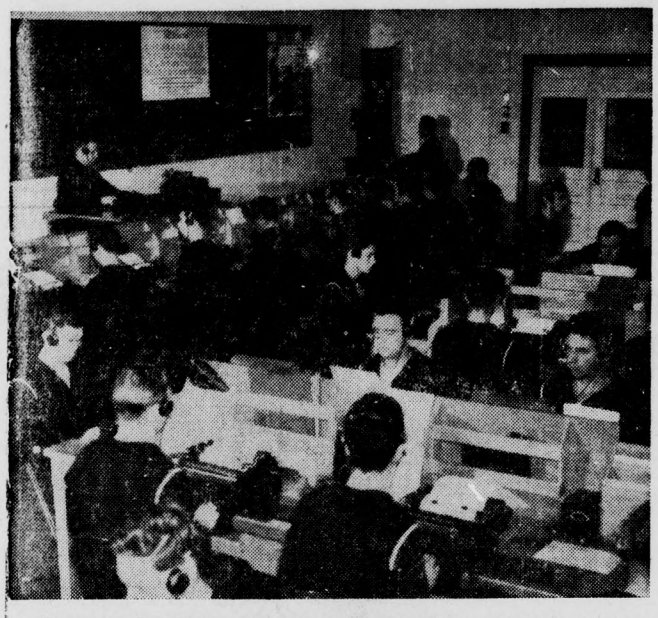
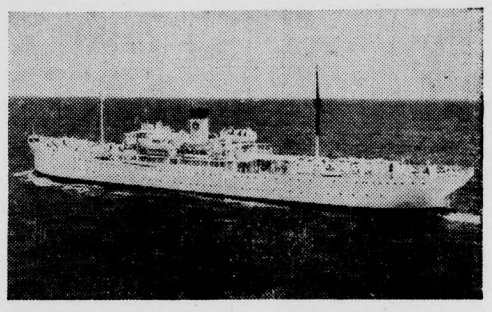
THEIR GOAL IS VICTORY

You've heard a lot about the American Way. Here we believe, is how the American Way looks in action.

When black-outs in the Los Angeles area resulted in a stoppage of night shift activity in defense plants workers of the North American Aviation company in Inglewood, Calif., requested permission of the management to work over-time to make up the hours lost due to the black-outs—and to do so without pay. Will John L. Lewis please copy?

UNCLE SAM TEACHES RADIO





To meet the demand for qualified men created by the huge shipbuilding program of the Maritime Commission, the United States Maritime Service is training youths to become radio operators in the American Merchant Marine.

Physically fit American male citizens 18 to 23 years of age with no previous experience are being offered a 10 months' course in radio operation, maintenance, and repair. Youths accepted are paid from $36 to $60 a month while in training. Food, quarters, and clothing are furnished by the Government.

Those who successfully complete the course become radio operators in the Merchant Marine with pay starting at $105 a month; food and quarters furnished.

For complete information write to U. S. MARITIME SERVICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

CALLING ALL MULES!

The War department has asked that every mule in America be registered for possible war service. From the Missouri citadel of muledom to the stable outposts of Maine and California, many a hee-haw of mulish satisfaction must bray forth at that announcement. No matter how mechanized the Army becomes, no matter how preponderately modern war becomes a sleek thing of movement on wheels, wars just can't be won without assistance from the cantankerous, rebellious, surly, stubborn, sour, unbeautiful American mule. Maybe he knows it—the tough, tireless, defiant, rude, morose and unconquerable beast! The horse is a softy and sentimentalist; so is the dog They have their places in war, too; but they fight as gentlemen. When war waxes blistering and bloody and brutal for Uncle Sam, he reviews the past—and calls all mules!

A NEW YEAR PROPHECY

Ushering in the new year of 1941 in his best pouter pigeon style, Adolf Hitler addressed the German Army in tones ringing with optimism, "Soldiers, the year 1941 will bring consummation of the greatest victory of our history."

With 1941 on its deathbed, the greatest victory in German history seems nowhere in sight. On the contrary, the dismissal of high-ranking German officers coupled with the fierce counter attacks of the Russian Army and the British victories in Libya, usher out 1941 in a manner which disputes the boast from the Nazi rostrum twelve months ago. The collapse of France in 1940 brought declarations from Germany of a decisive victory in that year. The attack on under-rated Russia again tempted Nazidom into jubilation over the prospect of total victory in continental Europe in 1941.

"ROSARY OF MEMORY"

Wherever American forces are fighting today, there goes with them the imperishable memory of Pearl Harbor. Its name stands emblazoned not only with the infamy of its attacker, but with the heroism of the men who gave their lives in defending it against a blow that struck without warning from a serene morning sky.

Gloating over the success of their first assault, it is now revealed a fleet of enemy planes returned for a third and final attack on that historic Sunday, and "met such a devastating barrage it turned away without hitting a single objective."

Another story, however, was written—a story of defiant courage that, in the fitting words of Secretary Knox, has added for all time the name of Pearl Harbor to America's "Rosary of Memory."

WARDENS APPOINTED

The civilian defense council for the Campbell district has completed its appointment of air raid wardens for the eight precincts under its jurisdiction. Appointment of deputies and sub wardens is also under way.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Hyde are the proud grandparents of a son born Monday, Dec. 29, to Mr. and Mrs. Homer Husted Hyde of North Hollywood. The young scion weighed seven pounds and 12 ounces. Mrs. Hyde is the former Kathryn Ray of Pocatello, Idaho, and Stanford university. We wonder if being up in the clouds over the news may have accounted for an overparking charge lodged against the fond grandfather in San Francisco.

THE BOOK MARK

BOOK MARK—....
"London Pride," by Phyllis Bottome.

'Tis a brief tale, this "London Pride," but nonetheless powerful because of its brevity. Short in the number of words, forceful in each situation and simple in its handling, this book is deeply interesting.

Phyllis Bottome has quite a number of other books accredited to her ability. Perhaps the one which has been most widely read recently is "The Mortal Storm." "London Pride" in no way, with the possible exception of the nature of the material of the two stories, can be compared with her previous works.

In this book children live—they laugh and love and eat and sleep and fight in the dockyard tenement section of London. Ben, the chief seven year old character of the story, wins your heart right from the very beginning. His mother, a charwoman, simple and loving and loyal, adores Ben, but also loves her other children, of whom there are five. Ben's father he has always feared. However, when bombs began to rain on this poor section of the great city of London, Ben found his father to be kind and loving and protecting.

This story is one of London under bombs, of a section of the city that is without much of what money buys. The author has put characters, particularly Ben and his mother, onto these pages of this book and made them real. She has written a book of this war—yes, it's a war story from beginning to end—that few writers have attempted—a book of children under bombs.

It is an absorbing and 'I-just - could - not-put-it-down' book.

SALVAGE

FROM the garrets, kitchens, cellars and scrap heaps of Canada, great quantities of metals are being redeemed for the Canadian war effort in a Dominion-wide campaign. The scrap is sorted and then hauled by railway, ship and truck to unloading centers like this where it is melted down to provide metal for guns and tanks and the many other implements of war on which Canadians are spending about 40 cents out of every dollar they earn.

NEW GADGET FOR THE MARINE CORPS

The latest weapon of Uncle Sam's armed forces is the amphibian tank used exclusively by the United States Marines. Called "alligators," the floating armored tanks carrying 30 men fully armed, travel 25 miles an hour on land and ten miles an hour in the water.

As the new tanks are delivered, more men are being needed to man them, and an opportunity is given to men enlisting in the corps to qualify for training with these amazing mechanized wonders. Any recruiting station will be glad to point out the many advantages of enlisting with the corps in defense of America to any applicant, age 17 to 30, single and with no dependents.

Cossack Chorus In San Jose Jan. 15

The original Don Cossack Chorus and Dancers, conducted by the diminutive Serge Jaroff, will appear in the civic auditorium, San Jose, on Thursday evening, Jan. 15, according to schedule. "Concerts as usual" is the word from the San Jose Concert Series, and this second event of the season will "come off" as advertised, just as concerts have continued daily in London and are being promoted vigorously right now from coast to coast in America by civic committees. One editorial in a Los Angeles newspaper declared that music was a part of the "defense" program, and should be regarded as such, satisfying a spiritual need of the people.

The concert of the Don Cossacks is more timely than was dreamed of when it was arranged for last spring by the Denny-Watrous management. When news from Russia is one of the chief interests of each day, it is significant that the thirty-four singing giants of the Steppes of old Russia should come to sing folk tunes, popular airs and chants of the untameable Cossacks whose music, according to Napoleon himself, defeated the would-be conqueror.

Tickets for the Don Cossacks are on sale at the auditorium box office. Phone Columbia 7087.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

In this chaotic, paradoxical world, good is often born of evil.

A husband and wife, long estranged, may be brought together by a family tragedy. A nation, long torn by internal discord, may find new unity—and a new bond of understanding—when attacked by a vengeful enemy.

And if the people of this nation can find a new regard for each other—a new appreciation of their responsibilities as members of the American family — during their common endeavor to protect their homes and country, then, certainly, this war in which we are now engaged shall not be fought in vain.

Out of the horrors of war may come, finally, not only peace between nations, but peace between classes in the United States—a bond of understanding which has been sadly missing in our country during recent years.

In the heat of controversy over strikes and labor excesses, this writer has often spoken out sharply against what we considered a violation of the rights of other members of the community by recalcitrant labor bosses. We have struck out, too, against labor racketeers of the stamp of Willie Bioff. But we hope that we have, and always shall continue to have, just as profound a regard for the rights and liberties of labor as we have for the rights and privileges of farmers ,or any other class of citizens.

With war in the Pacific, war in the Atlantic, and war flaming in nearly every corner of the globe—a war that may determine the course of history for hundreds of years to come—we need to re-examine our domestic problems and our attitude toward them. We need to take a look at the fellow who lives across the street—the man whose son may be fighting shoulder-to-shoulder with our son to preserve our America—and try to see his side of any issue which may concern us. We need to recognize that fundamentally, no matter what our economic or political differences may be—no matter if one of us be a Catholic and the other a Protestant, one a member of labor and the other an employer of labor—we both profess to believe in democracy. If we are good American citizens, we will respect and fight for the other man's freedom as well as our own.

Justice C. J. Robinson of the Supreme Court of the State of Washington, in a recent case, where freedom of speech (on the picket line) came in conflict with another great freedom—the right to work—made this challenging comment:

"I cannot believe that the right to freedom of speech is so absolute, unlimited, and overriding that persons, and associations acting in concert may not be legally restrained from employing it as an effective instrument to destroy the right of freedom to work. It would seem, when two civil liberties come into direct and irreconcilable conflict, and one of them is more fundamental than the other, that the more fundamental should prevail. That the right of freedom of work is more fundamental than the right of freedom of speech is axiomatic. The generality of mankind has, in all ages, been compelled to work in order to live and engage in the pursuit of happiness. The right to work is, obviously, the most fundamental of human rights because it is only by its exercise that life itself can be maintained."

In a spirit of tolerance and as a contribution toward better understanding, we commend that statement to the consideration of labor leaders who have sought to force the closed shop on agriculture, business and industry. The other man's right to work—his greatest freedom—is violated by the closed shop program. And in this critical period, it might be well for the union boss to reconsider and ponder it from that viewpoint. No one would think of denying union labor the right to work. Why should non-union labor be denied the right to work? The men from the CIO and the AFL—the men who belong to neither; the men who farm and the men who work in offices—are all Americans, all willing to fight for their country. And they should all have the right to work for it.

CALIFORNIA RUBBER MAY SOLVE SHORTAGE

William O'Neil Says Guayule Can Supply U. S. in 2 Years.

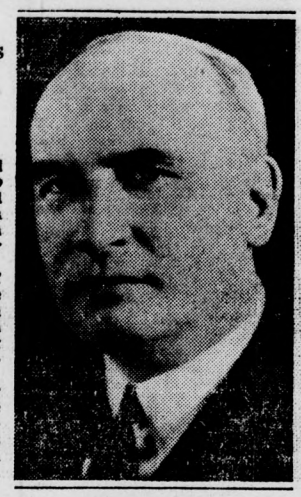
Farmers in California, Texas, and Arizona can grow enough rubber to supply the defense and commercial needs of the United States within two years, at no greater price than is currently being paid for rubber from the far east.

This was the statement today of William O'Neil, president of the General Tire & Rubber company, in urging that immediate consideration be given by Congress to subsidizing farmers in these states and financing rubber extracting machinery.

The plant from which the rubber may be obtained is guayule, a native shrub of the high plateaus of Mexico, which has been imported to this country and raised successfully in the area around Salinas, California, in Arizona, and in Texas.

Farmers are able to grow this shrub and produce real rubber at from 15 to 19 cents a pound, O'Neil said, as compared to the 22½ cents a pound now being paid for plantation rubber.

"It is easy to see that as an emergency meaure, the growth of guayule in the southwest has many advantages over the synthetic rubber development," said O'Neil. "For instance, the same machinery can be used in working guayule as is used with plantation rubber. Guayule may be used for all purposes for which far eastern rubber is used and this is not true of synthetic products.



WILLIAM O'NEIL

The capital expenditure necessary for expensive synthetic plants is not needed for the growth of guayule.

"And, most important, enough guayule can be produced in two years to supply all defense and commercial needs."

The only chemical difference between plantation rubber and guayule is that guayule has more resin content and deresinating has been made a simple process through methods developed by the Intercontinental Rubber Company at Salinas, O'Neil said.
